QUEENSCLIFF

Every child deserves a break

Cultivating our Cottage community

A program participant recently visited Cottage with her family to reflect on her journey over the past 6 years on the REEF and Mentor programs. “Cottage is the reason I’ve felt a real sense of community,” she shared. “She’s different when she comes home from camp … the benefits have been phenomenal,” added her dad. The 18-year-old has just completed her Certificate III in Community Services. Her experiences on our programs have naturally led her to explore this career pathway.

Every smile, every conversation, every adventure at Cottage has the capacity to shift the entire trajectory of a young person’s life for the better. This has certainly been the case for this individual. You can read more about her story on our website by scanning the QR code below.

Inspiration, fun and opportunities are so deeply interwoven into our philosophy at Cottage. Our Programs Team carefully plan experiences so that children and young people maximise their opportunities. But it is still the participant’s responsibility to say yes and embark on the adventure – to dive into the ocean, pitch the tent, ride the wave, have the conversation, try the new food, go on the hike … the activities come in spades.

The benefits of embracing these opportunities stay with the participants and their families long after their time at Cottage. Our latest research with Deakin University validates this ripple effect – creating waves that carry these children and young people through their entire lives.

"After 30 years of going to camps, I have never been to a place like Cottage by the Sea. I will recommend and remember my time here forever," shared a recent visiting teacher. Thank you for contributing to this meaningful, life-changing impact – we are so grateful to have you as part of our Cottage community.

As I shared at our recent AGM, every small contribution from a volunteer, donor, staff member or other supporter truly does create that incredible environment and the children do feel it. We look forward to continuing to enhance the lives of more children in 2025.

Adam Wake
CEO, Cottage by the Sea

Cottage by the Sea would like to acknowledge the Wadawurrung people who are the traditional custodians of the land on which the Cottage stands. Cottage by the Sea would also like to pay respect to the elders past, present and emerging of the Wadawurrung nation and extend that respect to other First Nations people.

News from Cottage

Riptide Cottage

Cottage by the Sea is fortunate to have received wonderful support from the community and the Borough of Queenscliffe for the rebuild of our secondary facility, Riptide. The project is funded entirely by philanthropy so that there are no impacts to the delivery of our current programs.

After an extensive tender process to ensure due diligence is effectively managed, we have appointed Plan Group Geelong for the build. The project is underway and estimated to be completed by Christmas 2025.

We thank everyone for their support, which will give more children a break at Cottage by the Sea.

New volunteers

We have gratefully welcomed the following new volunteers to Cottage:

- Jenny Blake
- Jo Pitt
- Tricia Ansell
- Trish Greig

New staff members

Alicia & Raff

Alicia Nolan is the new Marketing Officer at Cottage. She is passionate about all things beach and whippets – especially her own, Raff. Recently moving back to Ocean Grove, she wanted to work somewhere that gives back to the community. Alicia is stoked to be a part of the Cottage by the Sea team, having the opportunity to combine creativity in marketing with life near the ocean – all for an amazing cause.

Anna

Anna Thomson has recently joined the Cottage team as Personal Assistant to our CEO. Anna grew up in Ballarat but has lived all over the country before settling back in Geelong with her family. Anna loves the beach but is still getting used to the fresher waters of the south! Anna is excited to be involved with the fabulous work the Cottage does to provide a fun and supportive environment for its participants.

Programs

Take a Break – in search of Patrick the Starfish

On this camp, Take a Break participants learned that a little patience, curiosity and an adventurous spirit go a long way. Visiting children set out on a rock-pool ramble at the Barwon Heads Bluff, hoping to find their favourite sea creature Patrick the Starfish – the lovable character from SpongeBob SquarePants.

The search for Patrick proved to be more challenging than planned. Our Take a Break explorers combed through the rocky landscape, turning over stones and sifting through seaweed, but their efforts resulted in no starfish. These little sea stars know how to stay hidden!

After some local insights from our Camp Leaders, the children were guided towards a smaller rock-pool where starfish had been spotted a few weeks earlier.

Excitement surged as the children approached the pool, yet after thorough searching, not a single starfish was spotted. This was largely due to their impressive camouflage. With their dark green colour and red speckles, these tiny starfish – no bigger than a fingernail – blend into the surrounding seaweed, making them nearly invisible to the untrained eye. Fortunately, our knowledgeable Camp Leaders shared some tips on how to spot these elusive creatures. Cultivating patience and concentration, the children started to spot many starfish by turning over a few rocks.

When reflecting on what they learned throughout the week, one child summed it up beautifully: "To be brave and not give up." Persisting through the rock-pooling adventure made the reward of spotting the starfishes even more exciting.

REEF – exploring the Cottage Reef

Water activities are a big part of Cottage by the Sea's REEF (Recreation, Education, Environment, Friendship) program and are much loved by the participants, especially when the sun is out! The first day of camp was a magical day and the conditions were perfect for our 2nd-year Reifies from Colac to embark on their first snorkel.

The Reefies suited up in wetsuits and snorkel gear and headed out the back of Cottage to explore the nearby reef. After a safety briefing and a beginner's snorkel introduction, the participants set off to explore the ocean floor.

The visibility was great and the Reefies saw a school of fish, as well as smaller fish hovering around the reef. One participant spotted something unusual on the ocean floor. A Camp Leader duck-dived to the bottom to investigate and found that it was a mass of squid eggs! The participants were stoked and enjoyed inspecting and touching the interesting-shaped capsules. The Reefies then responsibly put the eggs back in their rightful place and carried on with their journey exploring the reef.

The participants were beaming when they got out of the water – reflecting on all the marine life they saw. "I really liked the snorkelling, and I would like to do it again," shared one Reefie. Luckily for them, the adventures never stop at Cottage by the Sea!

Mentor – immersing in nature at Moulamein

Camping at Moulamein is an experience our Mentors cherish long after their time at Cottage. The Anderson family and the APCO Foundation are great supporters of Cottage in allowing us to visit their amazing property in Moulamein, NSW for this camp.

This 5-day, fun-filled adventure allows the Mentors to slow down and participate in activities in the bush surrounded by gum trees and the peaceful Edward River. Days were bookended by waking up to the sounds of cockatoos at dawn, toasting marshmallows around the campfire and stargazing into the clear night sky.

The Mentors' favourite activity was ferreting. The anticipation and then squeals of excitement as the first rabbit runs out of the hole and into the net is infectious. The Mentors loved catching the bunnies and then adopting them as pets before releasing them back into their holes to live another day. "I loved holding the baby rabbits," shared a Mentor. The activity also gives the Mentors an appreciation for how people use the land to catch their food and provide for their families.

Participants had the opportunity to go fishing and explore up and down the river by boat, taking in all the sights and sounds of the bush. The Mentors enjoyed the relaxing nature of this activity. They all commented on how nice it was to be away from all the noise back home and not feel the need to be on their devices.

"I would love to go to this camp again … it was amazing … I'm so grateful," reflected a Mentor. Nature can bring out the best in these young people and allow them to challenge themselves in different ways. The Moulamein camp is a special experience for the Mentors, offering them a chance to disconnect from social media and engage with their peers in activities they wouldn't normally do.

Scholarship – reaching new heights in mountain biking

Mountain biking (MTB) is a passion that 2nd-year Reefie Josh* has put into action. “It’s a huge passion – I can’t emphasise that enough!” shares Cottage Program Planner Dave Geary. As part of Josh’s REEF scholarship, he applied for multiple bike parts to upgrade his existing bike, as well as safety gear to allow him to compete in competitions.

Josh’s family recently shared some exciting news with Cottage about his latest MTB adventures. Josh entered a Victorian School Mountain Bike Competition, which consists of 5 rounds that are held at different venues across Victoria. Josh came in second overall and obtained a silver medal! “As you can imagine, he is super excited by this achievement, but I would also like to thank you all for offering the scholarship that helped him improve his skills in an area he is passionate about,” shared Josh's mum.

Crocheted with care from Gympie

For the past 3 years, Irene and Cliff Shelton have taken a road trip to Queenscliff from Gympie in Queensland with a car full of crocheted blankets to gift to Cottage by the Sea. The 2,369-kilometre pilgrimage is an annual adventure the couple treasures – with Cliff taking delight in going down the slide each time they visit.

Ursula Cross is 93 years old and crocheted approximately 70 of the 80 blankets from this year’s donation. The couple forged a friendship with Ursula many moons ago. “We give her the yarn and she crochets it all up,” explains Cliff. “Ursula crochets while watching her favourite TV shows. She gives us a ring when they’re all rugs,” adds Irene.

Thank you so much Cliff, Irene and Ursula. We look forward to welcoming you back to Cottage the same time next year!

Unearthing our history

Support of Cottage by the Sea since the start

When Elizabeth Calder joined forces with Annie Hitchcock in 1890 to create a sanctuary by the sea for children in need, would she have known the gravity of that decision and the legacy it would leave for hundreds of years to come? We'll never quite know that answer, but we do have insights into her story from local descendants. A family tradition of supporting Cottage by the Sea is kept alive to this very day by sisters Elizabeth Morgan and Lavinia Cuming, who are the great-nieces of Elizabeth Calder.

Elizabeth Calder

The impact of Elizabeth Calder

"It's not far back that Elizabeth Calder and her colleagues started Cottage by the Sea. It's quite exciting for me to think that it was only my great-aunt, not further back," shares Lavinia. "She travelled all over the Pacific looking for funds to run the Cottage. Isn't that amazing?"

In addition to co-founding the charity, Elizabeth was Organising Secretary of Cottage by the Sea (known as the Ministering Children's League [MCL] back then) from the time of its inception in Australia until her death in 1909. "Elizabeth Calder's Annual Reports between 1897 and 1908 give testimony to her many years of honourable service," writes John Carney (Genie Research, 1990). Lavinia has a copy of Elizabeth's 1908 handwritten Annual Report for the MCL – her last report.

Original Cottage by the Sea building

“Elizabeth Calder started the children’s movement in Australia.”
– John Carney

“It has been said that Elizabeth Calder started the children’s movement in Australia,” writes John Carney, which comes as no surprise with Elizabeth’s teaching background and years of experience supporting children. To honour Elizabeth’s legacy and service, Cottage by the Sea has a Calder Play Room, with a photograph of Elizabeth wearing her MCL brooch adorning the wall. Records indicate that a Calder Memorial Wing was built at Cottage in 1912, including a playroom. In 1956, the Calder Ward was rebuilt as a modern brick playroom attached to Cottage. We can only assume that today’s Calder Play Room is in the same location as the original Calder Memorial Wing.

“Since the death of Elizabeth, Calder descendants have continued to assist the League in a variety of ways, often behind the scenes. The late Madge Gowan, Elizabeth Calder’s niece, served for some years on [the] committee and her daughter, Lavinia Cuming, has also been involved in League work,” writes John Carney. An article published in The Age in 1957 indicates that Madge was formally elected as the Honorary Treasurer of the MCL/Cottage by the Sea in November that year.

The Bluff is a special place that visiting children to Cottage have enjoyed over the years and still do to this very day – see pages 4–5 of this newsletter for proof!

A legacy lives on

When asked what Lavinia's involvement has been with Cottage over the years, it is about maintaining her family's legacy. "I did try and do what my mother had done – she wanted me to keep going and carry on with the Cottage, somehow," she shares. But raising four children in country Victoria didn't give Lavinia much spare time. "I just had to do my best. I was busy being a country wife, you know."

Fortunately, Lavinia made up for lost time when her children grew up and she moved to Point Lonsdale to be closer to Cottage. "I feel like I've really come into my own living here, on purpose, so I could be near the Cottage," Lavinia says through a smile. "I've got four children who I hope have taken in how important it is." One of Lavinia's children, Camilla, has a house in Queenscliff – her middle name is Elizabeth.

Lavinia's earliest memories of Cottage by the Sea were her aforementioned mother – Madge Gowan (née Calder) – talking about it. Like her mother, Lavinia has given back to Cottage in varied ways over the years. In addition to an annual donation each Christmas, Lavinia has also transformed her artistic talents into philanthropy. "I did art at school," she reflects, "but I couldn't do it much until I was 62, which is when I started going to lessons in Melbourne. That was very exciting – I haven't stopped." Lavinia is now 85 years old.

Specialising in botanical illustrations, Lavinia creates watercolour paintings, calendars, cards and prints and donates the sale proceeds to Cottage. She has also had an exhibition as a fundraiser for Cottage which, in conjunction with her daughter Julia who is a silversmith, raised $10,000. Lavinia finds other ways to donate to Cottage, too. "If I've got something I think the children might like, I'll take it to the Cottage. I take them Easter eggs at Easter and things like that. Some of them have never had chocolate before."

Capturing the history

Based in Melbourne, Elizabeth Morgan, Lavinia's sister, has made a significant contribution to their family's historical involvement with Cottage. In 1990 to mark the centenary of the MCL, Elizabeth [Morgan] commissioned Genie Research Services (quoted earlier) to put the pieces of the history puzzle together. Photos, maps, family trees and obituaries to newspaper articles and Annual Reports make up the "Elizabeth Calder and the Ministering Children's League" folder of research.

"The history was one way of contributing to Cottage," shares Elizabeth [Morgan]. Cottage by the Sea used to have their Annual General Meeting at the National Gallery of Victoria in Melbourne. "I went to one of the meetings and met John Carney, who had been hired to do the history about Thomas Calder in Maldon. We launched forward on a very good journey with the Calder family," shares Elizabeth [Morgan], smiling. "I collected all the photographs – I kept everything from my parent's house. To put it all together into the right context – to investigate further and to research it – led us down the most wonderful story of this Calder family," she continues.

Silver Princess* artwork by Lavinia Cuming

Lavinia with one of her cards

Like her sister, Elizabeth [Morgan] has fond memories of their mother's work for Cottage. "Mum worked with Cottage by the Sea until her final days," she reflects. "My mother used to love taking the children home from the Cottage – to their homes in Melbourne. Sometimes the child was welcomed home, sometimes they went into an empty house. She couldn't leave a child in an empty house, so my mother would try and find any relative. It was quite an adventure for my mother – to drive around and do this," continues Elizabeth [Morgan].

"It's an amazing story – that the Cottage is still going," reflects Lavinia. The descendant still wears her great-aunt's MCL brooch, which Elizabeth is pictured wearing in the photograph above the entry to the Calder Play Room at Cottage. "The brooch means everything," shares Lavinia, who is planning to pass it on to her daughter Camilla. Lavinia was gifted the brooch from her mother when she got married in 1964.

Following in the footsteps of those who have come before them, Lavinia and Elizabeth [Morgan] continue to breathe life into their family's legacy with Cottage by the Sea. "I think Elizabeth would be amazed – as amazed as I am – that her ideas, with her friends from England, created this. To do it took a huge effort," reflects Lavinia.

Deakin University

Cottage by the Sea is thrilled to share its latest and second research report from Deakin University – The Impact of Cottage by the Sea: From Ripples to Waves. Published in July 2024, the research explored the medium- to long-term impacts of Cottage by the Sea through interviews with current and former program participants, going back as early as 1939.

"It was the most rewarding piece of work I've ever been involved with," shared Professor Louise Paatsch, lead researcher on the project. The research brings to life the enduring impact of our children's charity – insights that we have known anecdotally for some time but can be so difficult to quantify and articulate.

The findings of the study – summarised in the themes below – validate the transformative impact of our programs and the opportunities they create:

- Fostering fun and enjoyment
- Building relationships
- Providing a safe haven
- (Re)Creating happy memories

As explained in the report: "The impact could only be understood once all aspects of the program were seen as working together, displaying the nature, breadth, and scope of the opportunities provided to those participating. It was these aspects that turned the ripple effects of Cottage by the Sea into the waves that often carried these children and young people through their lives."

"Even the smallest of ripples can lead to riding life's larger waves."

ABN Group

In early October, more than 40 dedicated volunteers from ABN Group's Melbourne office joined the company's leadership team for a working bee at Cottage by the Sea – "a charity we feel deeply connected to as a business," shared ABN.

Many hands make light work – together, the team accomplished 3-4 months of work in just a day! The assistance from this working bee has had a cascading effect on all areas of our operation. We are so grateful for the support and this partnership.

"ABN Group is proud to contribute to Cottage by the Sea, recognising the long-lasting impact a visit to the Cottage can have on a child's life," shared ABN.

Annual General Meeting

In late October, we held our 134th Annual General Meeting at Cottage by the Sea. We unveiled our latest Financial Report and Annual Report while sharing stories about the impact of Cottage on the lives of children and young people and an update on the year ahead.

Guest speaker Professor Louise Paatsch, lead researcher on our latest report from Deakin University, shared some fascinating insights from her work with Cottage.

Cottage Board member Natalie Hickey officially became a life member, recognising her outstanding contribution, dedication and commitment to our children's charity.

It was wonderful to have so many supporters in the room – from Board members to Ambassadors, Branch members, volunteers, donors and staff members – who all enjoyed morning tea together after the formalities.

Upcoming Cottage by the Sea events & fundraisers

- Annual Fair on January 11, 2025
- The Rippers summer function on January 25, 2025

Sea & Wood exhibition

5th-generation Queenscliff resident Darren Allbutt is continuing his family's legacy of supporting the community with the Sea & Wood exhibition. Held on November 16-17 at Cottage, all the sale proceeds from the art, sculpture and woodwork exhibition – totalling more than $13,000 – were donated to Cottage, supporting our life-changing programs.

"Cottage by the Sea is a gift to us all and I needed to do my bit to give back to this important charity in our community. I'm very grateful and appreciative to have had this opportunity – the response and support was amazing," said Darren. "The multi-generational impact of the Allbutt/Golightly family is a true testament to a ripple becoming a wave. The beach has had such an influence on Darren and his family, and it was amazing that he could channel that inspiration of the surrounding seascape into his collection," said Adam Wake, CEO Cottage by the Sea.

The Allbutt (Golightly) family history with Cottage by the Sea began with Darren's late grandmother Daisy Myrtle Golightly, who was one of Cottage's earliest volunteers. "This exhibition was in memory of my late grandmother, Daisy," shared Darren.
